Patricia Ramsey, '53, psychometrist, interviews students as they arrive for counseling and testing at the Guidance Center.

This door at the foot of the basement stairs in the Albert Emanuel Library has proved to be the doorway to the future for many of the people who have used it.

Prospective students establishing their qualifications for further education; students looking for part-time work while in college, or full-time work as they graduate; alumni looking for new jobs or occupational guidance; veterans who need advisement; all of these have used this doorway as a stepping stone toward a more secure and happier future.

The UD Guidance Center came into being as the result of a proven need on the part of Fr. Charles L. Collins, S.M., dean of students. His planning over a period of several years made the Center an actuality in 1946 "to provide psychological services for the students, organizations and individuals associated with UD." The natural development of the program of the Center has brought additions to this original plan in the form of work with the Veteran's Administration and testing work for parochial schools.

When the Center was established factors such as the need of freedom from disturbance, arrangement of counseling and testing facilities and room for expansion pointed toward the basement of Albert Emanuel Library as a logical place. In two years time the Center had expanded to include all of the basement.

Large Area In Use

Currently in use are four testing rooms, five counseling offices, two offices for the Veteran's Administration, an IBM test scoring room, record room and general clerical office. In addition are reception and waiting areas, and four storage rooms.

The success of any program of advisement and counseling has a two-fold base: professional training and a desire to help those being served. Thus the staff of the Center has been carefully chosen of well-trained and sympathetic people in all positions.

There are five counselors and advisers now on the staff. In addition to my duties of directing the Center I counsel students. Robert Noland, Charles Schiedler and Frank Hustmeyer are also counselors. Jack Bramlage, currently on military leave, is also a counselor.

All of us have special training in psychology and advisement and are qualified to give professional advice.

Four psychometrists, who administer and score tests, are on the staff. These women, who have technical training for their jobs are: Patricia Ramsey, '53; Gloria Gantz; Eileen Myers and Roberta McMahon.

In addition to these people are Rose Stephan, secretary, and a staff of student scoring technicians.

Harry Murphy of the faculty acts as director of placement for part-time student work.

Primary Function

The primary function, of course, is to the students who are to enroll or are enrolled at UD. We give each student an entrance examination. After the test a counselor reviews the results with the particular student. In this way each person is guided toward the proper course of study and establishes an occupational objective. Then the student is given information on the occupation, training requirements and qualifications.

The Deans observe the student's progress and give further counseling and orientation. This combined effort gives the student a full picture of his occupational outlook.

The Center helps the student in another way by providing a job placement service for part-time, summer and full time placement. Many students must work to help pay their college expenses. Through our director of student placement, the Center has contact with more than 500 employers in all fields of business and industry. During the last academic year we placed more than 850 students in part-time jobs.

Graduating students have the opportunity of interviews with leading companies who send representatives to our campus. Presentations of the company program, individual interviews and formal application are arranged for each interested student. An open index file is kept constantly to provide alumni with future resources. Many of the alumni have secured students or graduates for their own firms through the Center.

Another important phase of the Center's service is the personal contact with alumni. Many benefits can be expanded in the future and the University officials have expressed on numerous occasions their interest in this combined idea. Positions that occur, no matter how large or small, may be of interest to a student or graduate. When an opportunity exists in your company, or you hear of one in another organization, please suggest the service of UD.

School Testing Service

The elementary and high school psychological testing service has become an important function of the Center in the last several years. Approximately 100 schools are enrolled in this program in which the Center brings its testing program into the individual classrooms of the schools of the state.

Under this plan the over-worked teacher has more time to use the results and is not lost in the complicated procedure. Literature and conferences are furnished each school to keep them informed on the findings.

Recently a field office of the Center was established in the diocesan office of education in Cleveland with Frank Hustmeyer, '51 in charge. This office will service the entire northern part of the state which has requested our testing service for their schools. Other areas are conducted from the headquarters at UD. Plans are progressing at present for two more such field offices.

The continuous growth of this service provides new avenues for public relations. Increased enrollment at the University and recognition in the field of education are but a few of the direct benefits. Future development appears unlimited in this specialized field.

Special Programs

Many special programs are conducted by UD for other psychological requirements. Some of these are the American Medical Examination, Selective Service College qualification, Dental admission, National Teacher qualification, Graduate Record Examination. These special examinations not only include our own students, but those from various colleges in the area.

Last year a series of pre-engineering tests were administered to high school seniors in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York and Dayton. The purpose of this examination was to direct future engineering students in courses in accord with their capacities. Any deficiencies that were noted were brought to the student's attention. Summer courses were given under the supervision of the Dean of Engineering.

The Veteran's Administration has the largest specialized testing request. The UD Guidance Center services 32 counties in southwestern Ohio scheduling veterans in these areas for educational and vocational advisement. Direction and suggestion of their future course is outlined and recommended to the VA training specialist. The veteran is then informed as to his benefits by these assigned VA specialists who are at the Center.

The entire southern regional office of Ohio has a single contract with UD compared with contracts with some 12 institutions five years ago.

Other Users

Industrial, business, social service and welfare agencies also use the Center's services. These organizations usually are small and cannot afford the expense of a full-time staff in this field. Evaluation of their need is done and service provided accordingly.

During the past years a personnel selection method has become a vital role and recognized industrial relations practice. Additional training for employees has resulted in developing highly technical methods of planning and production. Further industrial advances will increase these demands for suitable placement.

The Guidance Center has also opened its service to individuals in the community. Many of these persons are dissatisfied and confused in seeking their objectives. A complete vocational advisement is recommended to survey their entire background.

Certain limitations confront these individuals and must be carefully reviewed before making a final selection. Oftentimes additional training is necessary before a complete change is acceptable. The counselor strives to be practical in the readjustment and guides the person accordingly. Each one has a different problem, reason or circumstance that must be considered in all phases. Many hours are devoted in this procedure to help the individual arrive at a decision.

40,000 Served

Last year the Guidance Center rendered service to more than 40,000 persons. One of these was an alumnus who was thinking of changing his field of employment. Having been out of college over 20 years he had given little thought to seeking help at UD. His call to the Center did bring him help.

After several hours of interviewing definite fields were selected that fitted his background and experience. Additional training in Evening Classes was recommended. Placement on a suitable job was accomplished in a very short time. In the discussion the question of his children arose and the counselor was able to give some advice on educational plans for them in line with their abilities and interests.

This particular case indicates the various areas that supply individual needs. The complex situations that confront most people leave them confused about the important step of occupational selection. Our known classified jobs range over 30,000, each have different requirements, opportunities, and qualifications.

Our job is to help all of UD-prospective students, students and alumni, as well as others meet and master their problems of educational and occupational objectives. Our services are at your call.

We of the Guidance Center—counselors, psychometrists and test administrators—feel that we exist for but a single purpose; to serve the UD community to the best of our ability. We enter each problem with no preconceived ideas or solutions, no pat phrases, but with an open mind and a technique of attempting to arrive at a solution.

No matter whether you are a prospective student who needs help in course selection or occupational objective; a veteran who needs testing and advisement; a student who feels insecure or who wants part-time employment to help finance your education; or an alumnus who wants occupational advice and counseling or help for a member of your family; we stand ready for all.

Annual Homecoming Dinner Was A Smashing Success For All

Memories, Manhattans, and many!

This could have been the theme song of the Second Annual Homecoming Dinner held in the Fieldhouse, October 17.

The 600 who attended the President's Reception and the dinner equally amazed as last year's group at the transformation of the Fieldhouse.

The cocktails were good, the friendship and reminiscences were better, and the food good for all except those few who didn't get served until late.

The committee who planned and brought the entire day's activity into being should be congratulated.

They were:

Dinner committee: Lou Mahrt, chairman; Robert Shults, '41; Paul Moorman, '30; Joan W. Earhart, '45; Jim Finke, '48; Frank Doorley, '43; George Earley, '43; Charles Helldoerfer, '33; Art Meyring, '28; Steve Emerick, '23; Clem Jauch, '08; Harry Cappel, '98; Ed Hoyne, '03; Tod Makley, '13; and Ray Westbrook, '18.

Decorations committee: Joan W. Earhart, '45, chairman; Margie Carroll, '45; Irene Veigel, '40; Elaine Glossinger, '44; Mary Ann Glaser, '45; Helen Martin, '46; Eleanor Kuntz, '47; Lucille Kronenberger, '44; and Ann Wourms, '46.

Ticket committee: Ed Borchers, '40; Al Suttman, '48; George Zimmerman, '48; Charles Helldoerfer, '33; John Steinbruegge, '48; Ed Freeh, '48; George Mitchell, '48; Bernard Shay, '48; and Bill Donahue, '48.

President's Reception committee: Bob Shultz, '41, chairman; Paul Moorman, '30; Elmer J. Will, '37; Dan Hobbs, '38; Hugh Wall, Jr., '34; Merle P. Smith, '25; Dr. John Duchak, '31; Robert McBride, '32; Paul Wagner, '30; Charles Whalen, Jr., '42; Bernard Keiter, '42; J. Ellis Mayl, '08; Gerard Faust, '30; and Si Burick, '29.

Some Alumni Successful, Others Defeated In Elections

Alumni have shown some prowess in the political world this fall in the elections in the Dayton area.

Two alumni were elected members of the Dayton City Commission and will take office January 1. R. William Patterson, '29, and Edward V. Stoecklein, '05, were successful in their first bids for elective office.

Harry Baujan, athletic director, was defeated in the same race.

Dr. Theodore Light, who attended UD at one time was a successful candidate for the city board of education.

In Oakwood, in the race for the board of education, Frederick Hooven, who attended, was a successful candidate; while Dr. Gerald Grout, '25; Carl Gerhardt, '30, and J. R. Summers, '21, were defeated.

In the newly formed Kettering village, formerly Van Buren township, five UD candidates all were defeated.

J. R. "Jerry" Herzog, '43, was defeated for mayor by Daniel Brubaker. William Stuck, who attended, was unsuccessful in a bid for Village Council.

Both R. Stanley Dybvig, '47, and Raymond C. Hoefling, '35, who were candidates for the board of education, went down to defeat.

Mrs. Marie Kindrick, unsuccessful candidate for village clerk, also attended UD.

Sorosis Officer Candidates Named In A Mail Election

Sorosis, organization of women alumnae of UD, is now holding a mail ballot for officers. Returns will be announced in the next Alumni NEWSLETTER.

Candidates on the ballot are: president, Virginia MacMillan, '51, and Pauline Spring, '51; vice-president, Mary Ann Glaser, '45, and Mary Ellen Nagle, '52; recording secretary, Dorothy Z. Thompson, '48, and Julie Timmer, '43; corresponding secretary, Patricia Radican, '52, and Marilyn Catron, '53; treasurer, Margaret Oldiges, '52, and Mary Weimerskirk, '49; publicity director, Madeleine Unger Riley, '48, and Delores McAnespie, '51.

Washington Chapter Officers Elected In A Mail Ballot

Results of the mail election of officers in the Washington, D. C., chapter this fall have now been announced.

Joseph Stermer, '31, was elected president; Oscar Rupert, '39, vice-president; and Nelson Decker, '30, secretary-treasurer.

New Academic Programs In Two Fields Designed To Meet Special Needs

Pictured at the time of announcement of the new UD-Wright-Patterson program in procurement and purchasing, are left to right: Col. E. J. Borowski, AMC chief of Operations and Training Division; Brig. Gen. C. Pratt Brown, commander of the base; Fr. Seebold and Brig. Gen. William J. Clinch, director of AMC Personnel and Support Operations.

Two new academic programs have been added to those offered at UD in recent weeks.

Early in the fall, the University announced jointly with Wright-Patterson Air Force Base officials a new program in procurement-production and supply.

The new course of study will be offered only at Wright-Patterson Center of UD, and in evening classes.

The courses will lead to an associate degree in business administration and will give students a background of Air Force procurement and purchasing procedures.

Three distinct courses are being offered—two in procurement and production and one in supply and services. One of the procurement courses is designed for students without a degree, while the other is for college graduates wishing to obtain a second degree in the specialized field.

The courses are open to both military and civilian personnel at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

An associate degree will be awarded to a student completing a 64 credit hour program in this area.

Two courses in the specialized area are offered this fall—introduction to Air Force supply system, and government contracting.

On Campus, Fr. Kobe has announced a new minor for home economics students. Beginning with the second semester, students in home ec will have a minor in retailing offered to them.

By taking four required courses and one of two others, students will gain basic training in the field and get a background of academic training in preparation for employment by retail establishments.

In addition to their classroom work, students will be required to work at least 15 hours a week in cooperative training on the job with Dayton retail stores in their junior and senior years.

The program is being opened for home economics students with majors in clothing and textiles or interior decoration.

Students will take courses in introduction to retailing, retail salesmanship, retail organization and operation, and buying for retail stores. In addition students will also take either retail advertising or retail mathematics.

With the program girls in the home ec department will be able to avail themselves of a secondary field of training and have a definite work objective for themselves.

It will also answer a request of Dayton stores for more women.

Hilltop Jottings

■ Nine promotions in ranks were made this fall on the Faculty. Rev. Charles V. Preisinger has been named full professor of speech and history.

Four were named as associate professors in their own departments: Rev. Edmund Rhodes, in philosophy; Lloyd Root, physics; Roy Wehmanen, general engineering; and Robert Wiechman, biology.

Fr. Rhodes is acting dean of the college of arts and sciences; and Wiechman is assistant to the dean of science.

Four were named assistant professors: Bro. Cletus Chudd, chemistry; Henry Ferrazza, physical and health education; Edward Harkenreider, philosophy; and Mrs. Elizabeth Payne, home economics.

■ Four new members have joined the college of engineering this fall. Oskar Hauenstein, formerly of Purdue University, is professor of engineering drawing; Lloyd Brenberger is an instructor in industrial engineering. Lloyd was with Delco Products previously.

Dr. Joseph Gabrys, formerly chief engineer of the state board of highways in Lithuania, has joined the staff as assistant professor of civil engineering.

Jesse H. Wilder, formerly of Duke University, is an instructor in mechanical engineering.

■ Seven new members have joined the college of arts and sciences: Philip A. Lake, instructor in English and speech; Edwin R. King, instructor in history; Charles H. Schiedler, instructor in psychology; Harold T. Bevan, instructor in psychology.

Lester I. Conner, instructor in English; Rev. Philip Hoelle, instructor in religion; and Lawrence Tagg, instructor in music.

■ For the first time, three full-time instructors have been added to the technical institute. Norman Holly, Richard Hazen, and Bro. Emil Morgana are all teaching in this department.

■ New in the division of business this fall are: Shao Kung Lin, instructor in economics; and K. Lawrence Chang, instructor in accounting and business organization.

■ Four new faculty are in the division of science. Joseph Bosshart, instructor in mathematics; Joseph J. Browne, instructor in biology; Mrs. Kathryn H. Gray, instructor in geology; and Mrs. Dorothy Campbell, instructor in mathematics.

■ James Douglass has been named an instructor in health and physical ed.

ROTC Program Reorganized, Branch General Program In

The ROTC—Reserve Officer Training—program on the campus has undergone its first major change in many years during the summer.

Early in the summer UD received authorization to convert its program to conform with the new Army Branch General military science program.

Effect of the program will be that the old Infantry Branch designation of the UD unit is no more and instead it will be known as a Branch General.

Under this program both the basic and advanced students will feel changes. Only the present senior class will not feel these changes.

In past years UD ROTC graduates for the most part received Infantry commissions.

The new course of instruction carries no specific branch designation. It is designed to select and train junior officers who by their education, training and personal qualities are suitable for continued development as Army officers.

Under the new system the branch of service to which an officer is to be assigned is not determined until the end of his junior year.

This assignment will take into consideration the recommendations of a faculty board and the student's preference, his major field of study, his experience, background and his general ability.

Under the program there are 12 fields available for ROTC graduates—infantry, cavalry, field artillery, coast artillery, engineers, ordnance, signal corps, transportation, chemical, military police, security agency and quartermaster.

This is the first major change in the program since its inception in 1919 on the UD campus.

Bro. Albert Rose Has Book On Ohio Government Published

Bro. Albert H. Rose, S.M., of the political science department, published the first full-length book description of government in Ohio, "Ohio Government: State and Local."

The book covers all governmental units in Ohio and was published by UD as a feature of the sesquicentennial celebration.

Topics include governments of townships, counties, municipalities, and metropolitan areas; and such things as taxation, public education, public welfare, civil service, elections, the General Assembly, departments of the state government, state boards and commissions and the judiciary.

The book is an outgrowth of Brother's classroom teaching in the field.

SPORTS

PREVIEW OF THINGS TO COME — Besides being a sparkling example of some of the ball the green Flyers played this year the picture above forecasts good things for 1954. Gavin Steps Out With Winning Record; Dayton In Market for New Grid Coach

Joe Gavin, fiery Irish mentor, has bowed out as head football coach of the Flyers.

Gavin winds up his tenure at Dayton with a pleasing note. Although the Flyers finished with a losing season, the game-by-game progress and stirring battles against arch rivals Cincinnati, Miami, and Xavier warmed the hearts of Dayton followers.

This 1953 team never let them down. Not much was promised before the season began for two reasons. First, the Flyers had 15 sophomores among 33 players. Secondly, the upper classmen for the most part were defensive players making the switch to offense under the two-platoon ban.

Only guards Roy Fischer, co-captain, and Jim Shafor, fleet junior, had seen much offensive work in the line and Jack (Rabbit) Martin was the only offensive back with experience.

After three straight losses the Flyers came back strong, won three of four—dropping a rugged game to powerful Cincinnati in that stretch. Dayton gave the Miami Redskins their first real test of the season and then retained the Governor's Cup trophy in a 0-0 sea-of-mud battle with Xavier.

The Xavier game was the last for 11 seniors. Besides Fischer and Martin, it was the final for Dick (Candy) Durbin, co-captain; Bill Caho; Don Dartt; Hal Gabel; Phil Shoup; Lou Silverii; Paul Spakowski; and Andy Zulli.

It was also finis for Vern Weber, Dayton's hard-hitting No. 1 fullback, who didn't play a single minute. Weber was injured in a pre-season scrimmage and didn't even wear a uniform until the Xavier game when he came out to spend one last day "with the boys."

Gavin finished with a seven-year mark at Dayton of 39 won; 26 lost; two ties and Dayton's only bowl team—the Salad Bowl of 1951.

Joe Quinn, his very able backfield coach, has resigned to "clear the decks" for the change in the coaching set-up. Quinn's plans are indefinite.

An era at U.D. has ended. It has been one of progress. The University has every intention of continuing that progress.

Douglass To Coach U.D. Frosh Cagers

Jim Douglass, former professional baseball player and now a member of the U.D. physical education department, has taken over the frosh basketball team.

Douglass succeeds Leland (Junior) Norris, Flyer basketball great and former captain, who now is head basketball coach at Fairmont High in Dayton.

Douglass prepped at Fairview High in Dayton and is a 1952 graduate of U.D. He's working toward a master's at Miami University. He served with the Army in Europe from 1943 to 1946. He then spent three seasons as a catcher in first the Boston Red Sox, then the Cleveland Indian, chains. He joined the Flyer staff this fall.

Sked Dragnet May Trap Kamikaze Kids

This is the situation.

The names used here are authentic. It amounts to this—the Flyers are placing a national reputation on the block with a suicide schedule. Thus a team once called the Cinderella Kids might now be labeled the Kamikaze Kids. The past few years some of the nation's top-ranking basketball teams have been under fire because of one of two factors—or both—either they play a padded schedule or they seldom leave their home court.

Dayton has neither of these aids that help build winning records. Fourteen of the Flyers' 30 games are away (yet by making good use of vacation periods and weekends Flyer players will miss only 8½ days of school—they are permitted six a semester, the amount the average student misses.)

A glance at the schedule shows it's anything but padded. There are only five or at the most seven games the Flyers "should win." Many top teams will face only five or seven opponents that are figured to give them any kind of a battle.

In one 13-day stretch the Kamikaze Kids face a line-up that for many teams would comprise their whole season's "tough ones." It begins in Pittsburgh on Jan. 4 against Duquesne, early favorite to be the nation's No. 1 team; Jan. 9, the Flyers face seldom-beaten Iona in Madison Square Garden; Jan. 11 it's Seton Hall on the Pirate Court; Jan. 13 tall, talented Western Kentucky's "best team in 33 years" visits Dayton; Jan. 16 it's Tom Gola and LaSalle in Philadelphia.

Just before this stretch, it's high-scoring Murray (Ky.) State and just after it's Seton Hall again and Cincinnati, one of Dayton's "three backyard rivals."

But no matter how rough the schedule the Kamikaze Kids are well aware of one factor. There'll be no tears shed for them if they lose. There's no sympathy for a loser no matter how rough the opposition. The sports public still rides with the winner.

The Flyers could have scheduled many fine teams and scattered the "toughies" through the schedule every three or four games. This would have helped them build a good won-lost record.

But they prefer it this way. It'll be a thrilling season which will give Dayton fans a chance to see some of the nation's best teams and players. If the Flyers have a winning season—there's no doubt where they should rank.

If they have a losing season—well, the Kamikaze Kids will have warmed many a heart and given thousands of followers and fans their money's worth. The case will be tried on the nation's courts.

This is the team.

Tommy Blackburn starts with a squad of 12. Only two, Don (Mickey) Donoher and Larry Pedicord will be seniors. But this is a team that already has received its baptism of fire.

Last season the Flyers had all but been written off—they had lost by graduation the great Don (Monk) Meineke, Chuck Grigsby, Pete Boyle, Gene Joseph and their roly-poly sensation, Capt. Leland (Junior) Norris.

But midnight failed to arrive for the team that was a Cinderella club, newcomer to the basketball firmament. The green, sophomore-laden Flyers showed early they were going to be rough.

LaSalle's famed Explorers moved into the U.D. Fieldhouse and had to go overtime to beat Dayton—even then the Flyers lost the game at the free throw line as they outscored LaSalle in field goals.

But when Dayton lost Johnny (Vertical Hyphen) Horan and Jimmy Paxson early in the overtime, All-American Tom Gola, who played the entire 45 minutes without committing a foul in a tremendous defensive as well as offensive performance, and teammates Norm Grekin and Fred Lehle pulled the game out.

Later the Flyers, catching Duquesne twice without Jim Tucker, defeated the Dukes in two double-overtime games and capped the season with the upset of Seton Hall. Five "Iron Men" played the entire game against Seton Hall and four return.

Only one missing is Jimmy Paxson, 6'6" forward, who was called into service. Returning are: Horan, Donoher, Chris Harris, and Jumpin' Jack Sallee. Seasoned players are Larry Pedicord, who played big roles in both wins over Duquesne; Don Miller, a sensation at the beginning of last season before getting the flu from which he never did make a comeback; and George Woywod, who played end for the Flyer football team this fall—thus, will be late getting in shape.

Key newcomer is Billy Uhl, 6'11" sophomore center, but Blackburn is expecting plenty from Gordon Dodane, 6'6" sophomore. The Flyer coach also hopes for fast seasoning of Bob Jacoby, talented guard, along with Bob Fiely and Bill Mihm.

Loss of Paxson and Arlen Bockhorn, frosh forward who also was called into service, was a blow as Blackburn is in dire need of a strong bench.

A nucleus of the team has had a baptism of fire but inexperience of the sophomores is a major hurdle Blackburn must clear. He'll seek to do it in courts throughout the land.

Here we are! A general view of all 650 hungry alumni at the Homecoming Dinner just after they sat down to eat.

Among the Alums

JOHN SWEETERMAN '23

John has had just one line of work in the last 25 years — newspapers. He joined the Dayton Journal as a counter man and two weeks later was an advertising salesman with a $10 a week raise.

In 1940 he became business manager of Dayton Journal and later became part-owner and director. When the company was sold to Gov. Cox in 1948 he became president of the Dayton Shopping News.

In 1950 he became business manager of the Washington, D. C. Post. Two years later he was made vice-president and general manager of the Company as well as a stockholder. In addition to the paper the company owns and operates a radio and television station in Washington, D. C. and in Jacksonville, Fla.

John was married to Jeanne Finn in 1935 and they have two daughters—Carol, 14 and Anne, 11.

He's active in the Catholic Charities and Red Cross in Washington. In addition to his golf he counts his hobby as the family farm north of Dayton. Home address: 212 Elmwood Road, Chevy Chase, Md., Business address, Washington Post, 1515 L St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

CHARLEY EISENHAUER '24

Charley is president of the Universal Tool Company which he started in 1936. He served an apprenticeship at NCR before he got his degree. He was one of the early employees of Delco and worked directly with Kettering on the starters.

He was plant manager of Vaile-Kimes for several years and head of special machine dept. at NCR a few years, after which he became chief engineer and plant manager of the Duro Pump Company.

Charley has 11 children—one of them, Richard, is UD '53. Paul, Charles and Dick are in the plant with Dad. Rev. James is teaching at Elder High School. Bill is a sophomore at UC, and Tom is a senior at Chaminade.

Three of the girls are married and a fourth is a Sister of Charity in Springfield. The youngest attends St. Albert the Great school.

There are 14 grandchildren. Charley's wife is the former Helen Unger.

Home address: 2834 Ridgeway Road, Kettering. Business: Universal Tool Company, 365 Leo Street, Dayton.

CHARLES HOPPA '40

Charlie says that his life has been "the normal living of an average person," but he seems to have done plenty. Right after graduation he joined Westinghouse in their East Pittsburgh plant as an electrical tester and he has remained with the company ever since building up a reputation in high speed steel mill control, marine propulsion, and mine railway control.

He spent three years during the war in the Navy, most of it as electrical officer on the New Jersey in the Pacific.

Returning to Westinghouse he was made foreman of the test department and moved to Buffalo in 1949 when he became foreman of test and inspection in industrial control division.

Since 1951, he has been senior operating engineer at the Atomic Power Division in Pittsburgh.

He and Mary have three girls; Marianne 9; Gloria, 4½; and Mary 21 months. Their hobby is family movies of the girls as they grow up and Charlie is interested in astronomy.

Home address: 7346 Whipple St., Pittsburgh; Business: Care of Westinghouse Atomic Power Division, Pittsburgh, Pa.

MAX GROB '35

Max came to Dayton after serving as physical director of the South West Gymnastic Society in St. Louis, and worked at the Dayton Turner organization while completing his degree requirements.

After graduation he spent three years as director of the North Cincinnati Gym. Then he returned to Dayton as a teacher in the public schools.

He was married in Cincinnati.

This summer Max was appointed principal of the new Miami Chapel elementary school in Dayton. He completed work for his masters at Wittenberg in 1945.

During the summer Max is program director and head counselor at a co-educational camp in northern Wisconsin, and his wife heads the arts and crafts work at the same camp.

In the summer of 1954 Max and his wife are planning a trip to Europe, during which he will see his mother in Switzerland for the first time in 22 years.

Max still has his interest in gymnastics as he coaches the YMCA gym team two nights a week.

Business address: 1600 Miami Chapel Rd., Dayton. Home: 2400 Roanoke, Dayton 9.

JAYNE NYHAN '50

During her senior year Jayne was already doing free lance TV commercials at WHIO-TV. Right after graduation she went to work in the station's continuity department.

A month later Eavey stores hired her to write, produce and present their commercials on the station. The account has grown from a start of 25 commercials a week to 95 now.

Jayne sees what each individual account wants to feature, writes the material, does any cooking involved, sees that the props are on hand, memorizes the copy and presents it.

Jayne used to do all this before the camera work but in the last six months she has had the help of another UD alumna, Betty Rogge Lutz, '44.

Jayne is also active in the Dayton Advertising Club.

Jayne has been before the camera so much that she probably tops Betty Funness. Jayne has done some 75,000 commercials in the last three years.

Business address: WHIO-TV, 1414 Wilmington Avenue, Dayton. Home: 2142 University Place, Dayton.

Meet the Family:

The Reilings: A Successful All-Alumni Family of Note

The Reilings are a real all-alumni family. All nine of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Reiling are graduates of the Hilltop; Dad has an honorary degree; and in the husbands and wives of the younger generation are three more alumni.

Dr. Walt, '30, prominent Dayton surgeon, and national president of the Optimists International, was the first of the family to graduate from UD.

Then came Charles, '31, who is now president of the Dayton Nut Products Company. In 1934 there was Victor, now vice-president in charge of manufacturing of Kurz-Kasch, Inc., plastics manufacturers. Vic's wife, Lilian Sheeran Reiling, was the first Homecoming Queen at UD in 1935.

Robert, '36, is now the manager of the Sears, Roebuck store in Akron, Ohio.

Dr. Jack Reiling, '37, is a dentist and shares offices with his brother Walt. Tom, '39, the youngest of the boys is the Springfield, Mass., sales representative for Emery Industries.

Mary Reiling, '41, is now Mrs. Ed Lange. Ed was in the class of 1924 and is vice-president of the Liberty Cherry and Fruit Company, Covington, Ky.

Edythe and Margaret were both members of the class of 1942. Edythe is now Mrs. Don Heet, he of the class of 1941 and the buyer of men's furnishings for Higbee and Company, Cleveland.

Margaret is the wife of Frank Strobhar, personnel manager at the Acme Aluminum Alloys plant in Dayton.

Dad Reiling, who received an honorary doctor of business administration degree in 1939, was vice-president and general manager of Elder and Johnston Company before his death.

Alumni Make the Front Pages Regularly In Dayton Papers

Every time we go into the University's clipping books we become more aware of the fact that the alumni play a great part in what is said about UD in the newspapers of the country.

In fact last summer a survey of the clippings for the past year showed that even with all the releases put out from the publicity office on the academic and sports on the Hilltop, the number of news stories in the paper was far and above the history of what the alumni are doing.

Or put another way, what the papers of the country say about the University is in major part the result of what our alumni are doing. New job, promotions, weddings, engagements and births still form the warp and woof.

Certainly the activities of the varsity teams, those activities of the campus that center on the academic side get their share of mentions but it is still a minority of the space.

Here is a good example. On Sunday, November 1, UD was on the front page of the Dayton Daily News because one of our alumni had been killed in an accident the afternoon before. (Dorothy Dienert Miller, '48.)

The next day, Monday, November 2, UD was again on the front page of the News, this time with two stories—the announcement that Harold E. Wright, '49 had resigned as city air pollution engineer to accept a job as supervisor of maintenance at Miami Valley Hospital; and the receipt of news by the family of Lt. Bernard Roth, '50, that he had died as a prisoner of war in Korea, more than two years ago.

In two days time, three front page stories, all about alumni of UD and prominently mentioning the University.

We who are here are doing all we can to get the story of the University seen and talked about but in the last analysis it is the actions of the alumni in their everyday life which furthers UD's reputation.

CLASS NOTES

TWO ALUMNI PRISONERS OF WAR IN KOREA DIE OF MALNUTRITION AND DYSENTERY

Two more alumni have now been reported as casualties of the Korean conflict. Lt. Bernard Roth, '50, and Pvt. Eddy Hess, '52, had both previously been listed as prisoners of war in Korea.

The Army has now definitely confirmed that both boys died of malnutrition and dysentery.

This brings the total of those who have made the supreme sacrifice to five.

Hess was reported missing in action on May 18, 1951 five days after he went into action. Fellow prisoners of war who were with Hess, have reported to the Defense Department that Eddy died on November 18, 1951.

At UD Eddy was a member of the freshman football and baseball teams before he was drafted.

Roth was reported to have been captured on July 11, 1950, the first Daytonian to be made a prisoner of war in that conflict. At the time of prisoner exchange he was first reported as having escaped his camp. Later it was established that he died while on a forced march on October 27, 1951.

Lt. Dick Montague, '51 Awarded Bronze Star

Lt. Richard Montague, '51, has been awarded the bronze star for heroic achievement in Korea.

According to the citation, "nearing an objective, Lt. Montague organized his men for the assault. Facing intense small arms fire he charged up the hill to within yards of the enemy. His action caused his men to support him and overrun the hostile forces."

Dick was wounded in the assault and spent some time at Valley Forge General Hospital recovering. He is now studying for a masters degree at the University of Pennsylvania.
